

Contents

Notes on Contributors	ix
Multilingualism, language norms and multilingual contexts Madalena Cruz-Ferreira	1
Part 1. Multilingualism and Language Norming
1. The bilingual as a competent but specific speaker-hearer François Grosjean	19
2. Independent multilingualism normative assessments, where art thou? Jason Rothman and Michael Iverson	33
Part 2. Multilingual Child Language Development
3. Laying the foundations for multilingual acquisition: an international overview of speech acquisition Sharynne McLeod	53
4. Early phonological development in the speech of bilingual-learning infants and toddlers: the interplay of universal and language-specific processes Barbara Zurer Pearson, Ana Navarro, D. Kimbrough Oller and Alan Cobo-Lewis	73
5. Are three or more languages really too much to handle? Tracing the possibilities of multilingualism from Singaporean children's choice of adjectival comparatives Deborah Chua	95
6. Multilingual infant vocabulary development in Singapore Tan Seok Hui	113
Part 3. Home and School Language Uses in Multilingual Contexts
7. What are multilingual children actually hearing? A case study on the prosodic aspects of multilingual motherese in Singapore Nala Huiying Lee	141

8. Singing the same tune? Prosodic norming in bilingual Singaporeans Tan Ying Ying	173
9. Norms for pronunciation of English in Singapore David Deterding	195
10. Mother tongue or literacy bridge? Towards multilingual norming in education Jean-Jacques Weber	215
11. Learning to read in multilingual contexts Heather Winskel	237

Part 4. Language Assessment in Multilingual Contexts

12. SLT practices in a multilingual context: the challenges of educational, social and language policies for children with language disorders in Singapore Joyce Lew and Alison Cannon	251
13. Assessing lexical development in Bilingual First Language Acquisition: what can we learn from monolingual norms? Annick De Houwer	279
14. The development of the Singapore English Action Picture Test: an expressive language screening assessment for Chinese Singaporean preschool children Chris Brebner	323
15. Assessing multilingual children in multilingual clinics. Insights from Singapore Madalena Cruz-Ferreira and Ng Bee Chin	343

Afterword – The nature of linguistic norms and their relevance to multilingual development Li Wei	397
--	-----

Index/Glossary	405
----------------------	-----